

MADE FOR THE EXTRAORDINARILY ORDINARY

Most accidents happen under incredibly ordinary circumstances to very ordinary people. And when things go wrong, this policy makes it right.

Real-World Case Study

Annette, a 26-year-old florist with a flourishing business and single mother of 2, was running personal errands late one afternoon, like she would every Saturday.

As she turned left into the grocery store parking lot, the sun was so bright, she didn't see Craig on his motorcycle and they collided.

In the blink of an eye, their worlds changed forever. Craig had multiple breaks and fractures, resulting in numerous surgeries and extensive physical and occupational therapy. He was only able to return to work after considerable rehab.

Annette's personal umbrella policy was able to respond to take care of Craig's injuries after her auto insurance was exhausted.
